WAS HELD TODAYJOINT SESSION OF LEGISLATURE
HELD AT NOON TODAY.DEFINES LEAGUE'S PURPOSESenator-elect Defines Purpose of the Newly Organized Progressive Republican Platform.

Madison, Jan. 25.—Robert M. La Follette was formally declared elected to succeed himself as United States senator for a term of six years beginning March 4, at a joint session of the legislature at noon today.

By an invitation of the legislature the senator accepted the honor in a speech before the joint session. Fully two thousand people had crowded the assembly chamber and showered congratulations on the senator at the conclusion of his address.

La Follette after accepting his reelection, pledged himself to the enactment of progressive legislation and disclosed the principles of the newly organized Progressive Republican League at Washington.

He made no reference to President Taft or to the Stephenson case now before the legislature, nor dropped any hint which might be taken to indicate he may be a presidential nominee in 1912.

The senate met in the assembly chamber at noon. Lieutenant Governor Morris presided at the joint session. The chief clerk of the assembly, Shaffer, read the journals of the preceding election of La Follette yesterday in the two houses which showed that the senator received 83 votes, Wilson 31, Kleist 14, and Winkler 1, there being four absentees from both houses.

Following the reading of the journals, the lieutenant governor formally announced La Follette elected to succeed himself.

On motion of Senator Martin a committee of five members was appointed to wait upon Senator La Follette and inform him of his reelection and ask a speech before the joint session. The senator's appearance was greeted by big applause.

La Follette declared he was highly gratified at the honor conferred upon him and pledged all his powers for public service. He announced the formation of the Progressive Republican

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Such erratic results of field artillery practice have been shown in the reports of commanding officers that Gen. Wood, Chief of Staff, U. S. A., has recently ordered what is practically a revision of the rules of firing. Officers in charge of guns are directed to be more accurate in their observations. So obviously incorrect have been the reports turned in that analysis of the results by War Department officials has been impossible. TO BE INTRODUCEDBesides County Option Bill Various
Other Measures Affecting Liquor
Traffic Are Planned.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 25.—Several bills for the further regulation of the liquor traffic will soon be offered, in the legislature, and enough is known of the attitude of the members to justify belief that favorable action will be given them or a satisfactory compromise agreed upon. Besides the county option bill introduced yesterday by Assemblyman Gullickson of Barron, various measures intended to afford other safeguards from the influence of the saloon are about to be offered. One bill is to create a no-liquor zone around the National Home for Disabled and Volunteer Soldiers at Milwaukee. An offered bill will propose an area of one mile for dry territory. Conditions as to the extent of drunkenness, squandering of pension money, robbery of veterans and deaths from the results of intoxication of the old soldiers who frequent the dives and saloons abounding in the vicinity of the home are said to be so abominable that the proposed remedy will have many champions in the legislature.

Another important bill will be offered by Assemblyman Gettle of Rock county, by which it is proposed to make it possible to collect damages for injuries caused by the sale of intoxicating liquors. Ten states now have such a law. Under it damages may be recovered for deaths caused by drunkenness, injury to property and person resulting from intoxication, or had domestic environment, as is provided by the Illinois law. Destruction of a family whose head died from the effects of liquor, where it can be proved that a saloonkeeper contributed to that end, will be ground for action under the proposed law. The proposed bill will be far-reaching in its effects and promises to stir liquor dealers to vigorous action against its passage.

Another bill will provide that a saloon license may be revoked for violation of any state law relating to the selling of liquor. To make Madison a dry city by legislative enactment is the purpose of still another measure soon to be introduced. The motive is the safeguard of the moral welfare of the thousands of university students who come here for their education. A half mile limit now prevails in the university section, but there is plenty of opportunity for illicit indulgence still, there being plenty of saloons within five minutes' walk of the rooming house section. The proposed law would knock out the privileges held by the University club, situated within the shadow of the university library, of maintaining private lockers for the storage of liquors for the members, against which there is considerable local feeling.

Representative Cooper, (Rep. Wis.) said: "This is an organization of those who believe it will be for the best interests of the nation and will promote the welfare of the people, to have the principles in the platform of the league enacted into law. To this end the members will do anything legitimately possible by vote and influence. It is not designed as a means of furthering the political purposes of any man, the underlying motive being a patriotic purpose to enact some laws which the country greatly needs, and the people demand."

Representative Madison, (Rep. Kan.) said: "The purpose of the organization, as I understand it, is to further the adoption, among the various states and the nation, of laws following the principles set forth in the declaration of principles of the League. It is designed to bring the country back to a condition of true democracy, wherein the people shall control the making of the laws under which they must live. It is certainly not a political organization to further the fortunes of anyone."

Representative Nelson (Rep. W.) said in part: "The need of some effective organization by progressive republicans has been felt keenly for the past two years. Progressive members of congress have stood the ground as individuals fighting for the same principles, while the forces of special privilege have been organized and united under a leadership. Hereafter we will understand each other, better even in congress, and progressive friends throughout the country, irrespective of party, will know whom to trust and to whom to appeal for aid and counsel in local contests. We stand for government by the people and will support measures and men that will promote the best interests of all the people."

SEEK PURPOSES
OF NEW LEAGUEOPINIONS REGARDING FUTURE
PLANS OF PROGRESSIVE RE-PUBLICAN LEAGUE
EAGERLY SOUGHT.MEMBERS MAKE STATEMENTSLeaders of New Movement State They Are for Best Interests of Nation
and Welfare of People.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 25.—Sailing blithely over the political sea the newly launched National Progressive Republican League is the sensation of the hour in both congressional and administrative circles in Washington. The opinions of the members of the organization as to its purposes are eagerly sought on all sides. Questions heard freely about the capitol are: "Is it to fight Taft's re-nomination?" "Does it mean a third party in 1912?" "Are they running La Follette or Cummins for president?"

Conservatives assert that it was "a scheme to gobble the republican party." The league's replied that it was a plan to separate the parties from the "interests" and the bosses that serve them.

Telegrams from progressives in many states reaching the members of the league increase their confidence that the cause will become a wide-spread movement. Personal expressions as to the objects of the league, as expressed by some of the organizers are as follows:

Sen. Driatow, (Rep. Kan.): "It is not a movement to organize a third party but for the purpose of promoting the things which we declare for. We believe that the welfare of the country requires that the responsibility of the government be placed more directly upon the people themselves and when office holders are held to account direct to the people, they will legislate more for the people's interest. That is the reason we are going to undertake to bring about the enactment of laws."

Sen. Dixon, (Rep. Mont.): "The formal statement issued in behalf of the league covers the ground. The object is to get a little closer to popular government. That is all. Any report that there is a political scheme behind the movement is wholly lacking in the truth."

Representative Geo. W. Norris, (Rep. Neb.), floor leader of the house, said: "The distinction must be drawn, that this is not a new party. It is an organization of republicans, present and future. It has not in its platform any concrete propositions of legislation, but it contemplates the platform to methods that will apply to all legislation." Norris was asked if the league would injure the chances of President Taft for re-nomination in 1912. He replied, "If the people want Taft it will help him. If they do not, it will injure him."

Representative Cooper, (Rep. Wis.) said: "This is an organization of those who believe it will be for the best interests of the nation and will promote the welfare of the people, to have the principles in the platform of the league enacted into law. To this end the members will do anything legitimately possible by vote and influence. It is not designed as a means of furthering the political purposes of any man, the underlying motive being a patriotic purpose to enact some laws which the country greatly needs, and the people demand."

Representative Madison, (Rep. Kan.) said: "The purpose of the organization, as I understand it, is to further the adoption, among the various states and the nation, of laws following the principles set forth in the declaration of principles of the League. It is designed to bring the country back to a condition of true democracy, wherein the people shall control the making of the laws under which they must live. It is certainly not a political organization to further the fortunes of anyone."

Representative Nelson (Rep. W.) said in part: "The need of some effective organization by progressive republicans has been felt keenly for the past two years. The case will go to the jury today. Handlin's argument contained a scathing denunciation for the prisoner and asked conviction.

and read the principles of the platform. The senator declared that he proposes to bring back representative government to the people and assure its permanency. He declared the league will operate in every state in the union for a long and successful career; that its purposes could not be thwarted nor foiled by any special interests or corrupt selfish combinations.

"Every patriotic citizen with the welfare of his country at heart will be invited to join the league," the senator concluded. Senator La Follette paid a high tribute to Gov. McGovern, the state officers and the legislature, in view of its progressive principles, and warned them against taking any backward step.

Following the conclusion of the senator's speech, a resolution was adopted to print the address and place it in the journals of the two houses.

CITY TAXATION
AND ASSESSMENT

VARIOUS PROBLEMS OF QUES-TION CONSIDERED BY SOCIAL
UNION CLUB LAST EVENING.

PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX

Is most flagrant Unjust in That So Small Amount of Personal Property Is Assessed.

With "Municipal Taxation" for the
subject and with men especially familiar with the phases assigned them as speakers, the meeting of the Social Union Club at the Y. M. C. A. building
last evening proved both interesting
and instructive to all who were present. The vital significance of the question to all citizens and the problems of equitable assessment were especially emphasized by all the speakers.

After a few introductory remarks by the leader, Dr. J. W. Laughlin, the first
speaker of the evening was introduced,
city treasurer James Fathens, whose
subject was "Our Annual Tax Levy."
"The first thing to be considered,"
said the speaker, "is how our annual levy is made up. During the months of July and August the finance committees of the common council get statements from the heads of the departments of the amount which they think
it will take to run them from the coming year. These figures together with all special levies, ward funds, etc.,
will give the total amount to be raised."

Increase in Levies:
Mr. Fathens then gave some figures
showing the increase in the city tax levies for the past ten years. These
brought out the fact that our levies
have increased from below $100,000 in the year 1901 to over $135,000 for the present year. The figures show a gradual increase with the high mark
in 1908 at $149,000. This was due to the fact that the time of making the
levy was changed, during this year so
that provision had to be made for nearly
fourteen months of city expenses.

This year the following bonded lev-
ies include: schools, $40,000; general,
$15,000; fire and water, $10,000; light,
$15,000; bridge, $14,000; with the ward
funds, $5,000 in the first, $3,000 in the second, $5,000 in the third, $3,000 in the fourth, and $3,500 in the fifth; and
various other miscellaneous funds.

Besides this there are the state and county levies which must be added to the city levy. "This has also shown an increase in the last ten years and will probably continue to do so for years to come. Its amount usually totals to about one-third the city levy."

Figures were also presented showing
the increase in the bonded indebtedness of the city from $5,100 in 1901 to $18,870 at the present time. This is constantly being decreased year by
year at one end and at the same time
is being added to by issues of new bonds.

In addition to the tax levy from $22,
000 to $24,000 are received by the city
from the saloon licenses, about $18,
000 are received yearly from the state
and county to add to the school fund,
and other items of collection total
to a considerable amount in the course
of a year.

Annual Assessments.
P. P. Starr, supervisor of assessments, discussed the subject of Our Annual Assessments. "The local assessors have the power and are duty
bound to learn the value of all property, tangible and intangible, and are
also supposed to put the parties assessed under oath," said Mr. Starr. "The basis of valuation, he said, was determined by the market value of the property assessed. Various ways of computing this were mentioned, as comparison with like property and
consideration of the income which the property produces. Property in Rock County is assessed at about 80 per cent of its full valuation and it is important that this percentage be the same for all in order that a just apportionment may result."

For Expert Assessment.
To the question, "Would Janesville
be benefited by employing an expert
assessor by the year?" Mr. Starr responded emphatically in affirmative. This is an age of efficiency when experts
are needed in every line in order to get the best results. No business man
can take up the work and do justice
to it and as it is the most important
office in the city and should be filled
by men who know their business from beginning to end.

Suggests Remedy.
But there should be no condemnation without a remedy. Mr. Starr believed that the tax machinery of the state should be reconstructed. There would have a tax commission appointed which would in turn select the supervisor of assessments and every assessor who would all be responsible to the appointing body.

The delay which some business
practices on the assessors was deplored
and every man should be bound to realize that the assessors' duty is one
of the most important during the course of the year. Rights of others can't be trampled on, nor the laws disobey-
ed, and common decency disregarded,
with the belief that this perjury, insult and depravity can be excused by contributing heavily to the church
or other benevolent institutions. Taxation is a matter of vital importance
which demands equity, progress and
efficiency on the part of all concerned.

Queer Taxation.
With "Queer Taxation" for a topic, S. C. Cobb pointed out some of the methods of taxation practiced in ancient times with their apparent injustice to the subjects. Feudal times
were especially productive of peculiar
forms of taxation which have not entirely been effaced at the present day.
Some quotations from the tariff scheduled brought out this point.

Tax Experts Assailed.
That the taxing of credits which
were merely evidences of actual property, was unjust and worked double
and oftentimes triple taxation, and
that tax experts were detrimental to the welfare of the community's beliefs, was the contention of Arthur Fisher. In discussing the matter of personal property in the way of
notes and credits the speaker stated
that it was wrong to tax these items at
all inasmuch as they were merely evidences of actual property which is always taxed. It has been the experience that this intangible property is hard to get at and in the majority of cases evasion is the usual practice. It is only the weaklings who do not know how to evade or the conscientious who pay these taxes with the resulting inequality and injustice.

The proposition to employ tax fer-
rets to collect these taxes it as argued, was a wrong one. The tax is manifestly unjust anyway, it was said,
and experts would destroy the confidence of the people in the business interests of the nation, without attaining the desired result. They would have no more power than our own assessors and could accomplish no more than our assessors ought to. It would offer a big opportunity for graft and
bribe and would do much to drive
capital out of the city.

Tax Dodgers Hit.
Men who withhold an exact statement of their personal property value
from the assessors, were ruthlessly
exposed in the discussion of Chas. W.
Reeder on the topic "Do the citizens of Janesville each bear his just and equitable share of the taxes?"

"The small amount of personal property which the rich men of this city
have according to the assessment roll
is appalling. All that many of them
have in this line is an automobile
which the assessors have been especially careful to list. A large percentage of these rich men who have no
personal property, are deceivers in the church, or members of the congregation. The present rate of taxation in the city is near 2 per cent while in personal property were listed and taxed as it should be the rate would be less than 1 per cent. It is the people who own real estate who pay the extra amount, and if the present practice continues it will necessitate their
selling what they have and moving elsewhere. They will be capitalists
who will move."

Mr. Reeder cited numerous cases
without mention of names, of wealthy
and influential citizens who have scarcely anything listed on the personal tax
list.

Important Questions.
Mr. Reeder concluded with asking some questions directed to the assess-
ors, the city and district attorneys.
Among the questions asked were:

"To the assessors: Do you always,
honestly, use your best judgment in
assessing personal property?"

Does the fact that a man is an influential citizen and a rich man make
it easier to believe his statements
than if he is poor and less reliable?"

"To the city attorney:

"If you are looking for a feather to put in your hat, why not drop the Water Co., the Gas Co., Electric and Street Railway Co., and give your attention to certain bankers, lawyers,
doctors, and business men?"

"To the district attorney:

"If you know and could prove that
certain of the tax payers in this city,
had made false statements about their
personal property would you take steps to collect the forfeitures as are required by law?"

THE PURE FOOD
LAW

Secretary Wilson says:
"One of the objects of
the law is to inform the
consumer of the presence
of certain harmful drugs
in medicines. The law requires that the amount
of chloroform, opium, morphine and other habit
forming drugs be stated on
the label of each bottle.
The manufacturers of Meritol Cough Remedy
have always claimed that
their remedy did not contain any of these drugs,
and the truth of this
claim is now fully proven,
as no mention of them is made on the label. This remedy is not only one of
the best in use for coughs and colics. Its value has been proven beyond question
during the many years it
has been in general use."

Mrs. Sibilla Kundert.
Special to the Gazette.

New Glarus, Jan. 25.—Mrs. Sibilla
Kundert, a pioneer resident of New Glarus, quietly passed away last evening at 8 o'clock at the age of 75 years.
Her death is attributed to old age and
injuries received from a fall on an icy walk some time ago. Although the time of attendance was given her, her
life could not be saved.

Mrs. Kundert was born in Hertsch-
wanden, Canton of Glarus, Switzerland, in the year 1836. In 1853 she was married to Paulus Kundert, who preceded her in death several years ago. In 1854 they came to America
and settled down on a farm west of New Glarus, where they made their home for many years. Mrs. Kundert
was a quiet, peace loving person of the gentle Swiss type.

She is survived by seven children,

circle of relatives mourn her departs-
ure. The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the cemetery of the Swiss Reformed church.

POLITICAL CORRUPTION.
The game of politics as it is usually played, is not a very wholesome game as is evidenced by investigations now going on at the national capitol, as well as in half a dozen states.
"The statement has frequently been made that if women were given the right of suffrage, that corrupt practices would vanish like dew in the morning sun, and the purity of the ballot box would be speedily established, but experience is proving that the reverse is the case, and that corruption, as well as many other evils, is on the increase.
"The Ladies' Home Journal employed Richard Barry, widely known as a writer on sociological conditions, to make a careful study of the effects of woman suffrage in the states where women have been given the right to vote. As the result of his investigation an exhaustive report followed, which was published in a late issue of the Journal.
Mr. Barry found that in these states nothing was being done along humanitarian lines to better the condition of women and children, while juvenile crime, and the social evil was on the increase, and the divorce mill was the busiest industry, in some of the cities. Here is a scrap of political experience related by Mr. Barry, which is enlightening.
"I was in Denver at the time of the last election, and had, therefore, a first-hand opportunity to study the question of woman's honesty in politics. I saw scores of women accept money for the election held in Denver on May 17, 1910. An incalculable amount of money was spent on that day. In my own very restricted sphere I saw about $17,000 paid out to women in five, ten and twenty dollar lots.
"Two issues were before the people. First, the temperance question: should the town be wet or dry? Second, the water franchise question: should the city own its own water plant or let a corporation have it?
"On the temperance question every one of age could vote and the ballots were about half male and half female. On the franchise only taxpayers could vote and the ballots were about two-thirds male and one-third female. The great bulk of the money was spent by the saloon-keepers to keep the town wet, and by the corporation to get the franchise.
"The corporation, though it spent hundreds of thousands of dollars, could not purchase the male electorate. Municipal ownership won by a comfortable majority.
"But on the temperance question the vote was: For the dry, 12,347; for the wet, 33,191; the vote's majority, 15,844. With the votes half female and half male the saloon-keepers won almost two to one.
"That same day I sat in the office of the campaign manager of the 'wets' and saw a stream of 'political' women pass in and out. Each woman took with her a ten-dollar note and instructions how to work her precinct. There were 211 precincts and four women workers to each precinct. The night before election each of them got un-

other ten dollars; the committee women twenty-five and the chair women seventy-five dollars apiece.
"A little later, in one of the most exclusive polling places, I talked with one of the highest officials in Denver. The votes were being cast in a garage. Women were driving up in their automobiles, and were being escorted to the ballot-box by their husbands, brothers, fathers and friends. All looked perfectly orderly and respectable. But, out in the street, two girls, workers, smartly dressed, were seated in a carriage with their feet poised on the opposite seat, nibbling the candy just handed them by the manager on his rounds, and chatting familiarly with every male hanger-on that came along.
"Don't fail to look below the surface," said the official. "When any one tells you that women taking in politics help any tell him he has no real knowledge of the subject. In this election about a thousand women are being paid as workers, and 422 more women are sitting as officials at the polling places. Every single one of those women has lost something, that indelible something that ought to set her apart. I would no more think of letting my wife or daughters come here to work than I would think of taking poison into the kitchen."
"It is inevitable," continued this political manager, and I may well close with his words, as the man stands high in Denver's political circles, and voices the opinion that I found was held by many—"It is inevitable," he said, "that women should lose not only their fitness, but also their character, when they mix in politics. They cannot see the game as we do, not because they are mentally inferior, for I do not believe they are, but because they lack the experience in affairs. So men do not treat them seriously. Woman suffrage in this state is a joke, when it is not a shame. High-minded men ignore the woman voter; to low-minded men she is—well, the less said about that the better."
This is an affront, not as a theory, but as a fact, and it confirms the belief that the sphere of woman is in the home, and not in the political arena.
THE NEW MOVEMENT.
Not the new nationalism, but the new progressive movement, started in Washington a day or two ago, and which is expected to stampede the country. Here is the platform, briefly outlined:
"First: The popular election of senators.
"Second: Direct primaries everywhere and for all offices.
"Third: The primary selection of delegates to the national convention, with the voter empowered to express his preference as to candidates for president.
"Fourth: Corrupt practices legislation.
"Fifth: The initiative, the referendum and the recall.
The tariff, currency reform, and other important items are expected to take care of themselves when the people come into their own, and representative government is in full swing.
Colonel Roosevelt has been invited to come in out of the wet, but President Taft is expected to take his chances out in the open. Senators Cummins and La Follette are not on the preferred list, as they will be quite busy grooming for the race in 1912. They are said to be in hearty sympathy with the movement.
If you had $100 and loaned it to a friend and took his note, and your friend used the money to buy a horse, and the horse being tangible property is taxed, why should you be taxed for a note which is simply an evidence of debt? This problem was propounded by one of the speakers at the Social Union club last night, who claimed that the same principle applied to many kinds of property, which all goes to prove that death is a good deal more certain than taxes.
The last word was probably said at the Social Union club last evening on the question of local taxation, and it was difficult to determine whether the average Janesville taxpayer was a saint or a perjurer. The speakers were practically a unit in denouncing the present system of taxing personal property and the legislature is expected to remedy some of the evils.
With the substantial endorsement given to Senator La Follette by Cook county, at the primary election, it is to be regretted that the county's representative in the senate did not feel warranted in supporting him for reelection. One vote could make no difference with results.

THE POET PHILOSOPHER

By WALT MASON.
The rich man gives ten million yen to benefit his fellowmen. And when he takes it from the bin PHILAN- where he has stored the shining tin, he still has heaps of gaudy plunks, and bullion lying round in chunks. Before he shuts the cellar door the bin is full and running over, for money's pouring in so fast the little hole he made can't hold. Yet I hope these wealthy ducks who cast about their silver bucks. If millions could only live a thousand years, they'd learn to give according to the wholesome plan that's common to the working man. I saw a man in flannel shirt, a man begrimed with grease and dirt dig up his little wand of green to help a man he'd never seen. He gave five bones—he had but ten—to help his unknown fellowmen, and he had worked day after day, to earn the plunks he gave away. It seems to me this working man looks big beside the million man. I'll bet recording angels wink when millions hand out their chunk.

MEMORY OF OLD-TIME ACTOR CROWDED OUT BY THE MODERN FAVORITES
James E. Murdoch, Whose Centennial Occurs Today, Remembered Only By Older Members of Profession.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 25.—The fact that today was the centennial anniversary of the birth of James E. Murdoch was recalled by the inmates of the Forrest Home for Aged Actors, some of whom were personal friends and professional associates of the great actor. Mr. Murdoch, who was one of the last of the celebrated actors of the old school, of which Forrest, Sturtevant and the elder Booth were the chief exponents, was born in Philadelphia, Jan. 25, 1811, and much of his professional career was closely identified with this city. It was on the stage of the old Arch Street Theatre, in 1839, that he made his first appearance behind the footlights, and later he became manager of the Chestnut Street Theatre. After making numerous successful tours of the United States and Canada, and also appearing in England, Mr. Murdoch retired from the stage and spent his declining years on a farm near Chechnut, where he died in 1893, aged eighty-three.

Former U. S. Senator Thomas W. Palmer Celebrates Birthday At Home In Detroit.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Detroit, Mich., Jan. 25.—Former United States Senator Thomas W. Palmer, Michigan's "grand old man," received a flood of congratulations today on the occasion of his eighty-first birthday anniversary. Among those to send felicitous messages was the Michigan Rural Suffrage association, including the ex-Senator of the eloquent speech he made in favor of their cause when he was a member of the senate many years ago. Mr. Palmer is in good health for a man of his years, though he still feels some ill effects from the accident with which he met last summer while riding in his automobile.
ARKANSAS METHODISTS IN ANNUAL CONCLAVE
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 25.—The thirty-ninth annual session of the Arkansas Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church convened in Fort Smith today, to continue over Sunday. There is a large attendance of clergy and laymen and among the visitors are several church leaders of prominence from outside the state. Bishop Quayle of Oklahoma City is presiding over the sessions.

One of Wisconsin's Mothers
Who Always Keeps Per-na in the House.
"I am now able to do my housework again, and have a good appetite. I have used thirteen bottles of Peruna and one of Manalin. My husband and children are also in good health. We always keep Peruna in the house. I thank you a thousand times for your advice."—Mrs. Alvina Plamann, 1914 Walnut St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.
If any one really wanted to find out whether or not Peruna is good for the baby who would he naturally ask? Some one who never used Peruna? Some one who is prejudiced against Peruna? Some one actuated by selfish motives who is opposing Peruna for the sake of the notoriety?
Would any sane person who really wanted to know about Peruna ask any of those people? Of course not.
Who would they ask? They would ask mothers who have raised babies and used Peruna for their babies times without number. They would ask the parents who love their families, and know more about Peruna than all the professional writers in the world.
Above we give the portrait and testimonial of one of the mothers who has used Peruna, and who has raised healthy and happy babies. We have many more such mothers in every state in the Union. These mothers give their testimonials entirely unsolicited, without pay or expectation of pay. Their only desire is to point out to other mothers a useful and reliable family medicine.

Heart to Heart Talks.
By EDWIN A. NYE.
LONG DISTANCE CRIME.
It is easy to sin by long distance telephone.
To commit crime by telephone is not only easier but safer than to be on the ground where the crime is committed.
What do I mean?
Well, say a switchman is killed in the yards at Indianapolis because of lack of equipment or a brakeman is crippled for life at Chicago because there is no safety coupler provided according to law.
Who commits the crime?
Is it the division superintendent? He has perhaps often called the attention of the general manager to the need of the appliances the law requires, and the general manager has urged the directors board.
Who is guilty?
Manifestly "the directors" who sit about the mahogany table in the Wall street office or the capitalist who manipulates the directory. And the crime is committed for the basest motive—money.
It has been done by long distance methods. The men on the ground must make dividends or resign. The stockholders must have their money even if it be wrung from quivering human flesh.
Or—
Here are more infants sorting coal over a chute and being slowly choked to death, or for lack of timbers a mass of slate falls from the mine roof and kills the head of a family, or for lack of ventilation men die of "drednup," or a fire breaks out in a room for lack of proper inspection, and there are no cut-out doors, and half a hundred miners die in the tunnels.
Who commits the crime?
The pit boss? He has done his best. He has reported conditions to the manager and the manager to the owner and has been answered that "more economies must be used in operation."
Who is guilty? The coal baron hundreds of miles away from the place of the crime.
Or—
Here are hundreds of children under legal age working in a big cotton factory. There is a law on the statute books of the state against child labor, but it is not enforced.
Who is guilty? Somebody miles away who is sending his family to Newport or to Europe for the summer.
Criminals? Think you they are the thieves who slouch through back alleys or the pickpockets and women of the street who fill the benches of the police court of a morning?
No; they are the men "higher up"—the dwellers on Fifth avenue or Prospect boulevard.

That is the bitterest of all, to wear the yoke of your own wrongdoing.—Elliot.

What a Grand Thing Memory Is
In ancient times the Egyptians erected great pyramids to the memories of their departed kings. Today those same pyramids stand as wonders to the civilized world, preserving still the memories of the ancient kings.
In modern times, great works of art, in granite and other stone, and works more simple in design, are erected to preserve the memory of those gone beyond—and these marks of affection will remain for ages.
In the spring of the year the placing of Monuments is most frequent and it is advisable to place orders now for work of this nature, so that it will be ready for spring setting.
To those who intend purchasing a marker or monument we direct attention to our excellent display and to the perfection of our designs and lettering. We suggest that you visit our display rooms.

In any one really wanted to find out whether or not Peruna is good for the baby who would he naturally ask? Some one who never used Peruna? Some one who is prejudiced against Peruna? Some one actuated by selfish motives who is opposing Peruna for the sake of the notoriety?
Would any sane person who really wanted to know about Peruna ask any of those people? Of course not.
Who would they ask? They would ask mothers who have raised babies and used Peruna for their babies times without number. They would ask the parents who love their families, and know more about Peruna than all the professional writers in the world.
Above we give the portrait and testimonial of one of the mothers who has used Peruna, and who has raised healthy and happy babies. We have many more such mothers in every state in the Union. These mothers give their testimonials entirely unsolicited, without pay or expectation of pay. Their only desire is to point out to other mothers a useful and reliable family medicine.

REALLY

Painless Dentistry

"Did you ever before have a tooth extracted really without pain?" said I to the pleased patient as she was leaving the office. "NEVER!!! BEFORE," she said. And that's the common thing with me every day. I really seem to satisfy people's most optimistic desires in the way of Painless Dentistry.

AN OLD REMEDY.

Beef, Iron and Wine is one of the good old remedies that has outlived
a score of patent tonics, reasonable
in price, a satisfactory tonic, appetizer
and mild stimulant. There is nothing better for that tired, worried, flat-
less feeling or run-down condition
of the system after illness of any kind.
It tones the whole system, stimulates
digestion, gives you appetite, is a good iron tonic for weak, pale children or old people, far more effective than
mult extracts or extracts of cod
liver oil that depend upon their attention alone. Beef, Iron and Wine
tonics and sustains, it assists nature
to recuperate, it's a food to the sick
and nursing mothers.

Mr. Pioning, our Graduate Pharma-
ceutist and Chemist, prepares our Beef,
Iron and Wine. It's always fresh,
made from the very best extract of
beef, wholesome, properly aged, sherry
wine and soluble iron.

We don't sell ready-made, hand-me-
down, factory-manufactured Beef,
Iron and Wine. We believe and know that medicine should be compounded
only by the experienced and scientifically trained.

"Try a bottle of our Beef, Iron and Wine as made by Mr. Pioning. It's a full pint. Note the wholesome taste and invigorating effect. You will be more than satisfied. Get it at the Ludger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River St. The drug store that makes a specialty of drugs."

THOMAS BOWLES DIED
ON TUESDAY EVENING

Well Known Resident Of Janesville
Passes To The World Beyond
After Short Illness.

At eight thirty last evening, Thomas
Bowles, a resident of Janesville since 1855, passed to the world beyond after a short illness. Mr. Bowles death was
the direct result of stomach trouble,
from which he has suffered for some years, but which became acute within the past week. Thomas Bowles was born in Alexander Bay, New York
state in 1830. In 1851 he was married to Miss Sarah Cheesman at Thera-sa, N. Y., and two years later the couple moved to Janesville, which has been Mr. Bowles' home since. Mrs.
Bowles died in 1887, and in 1888 Mr.
Bowles was married to Miss Nettie Campbell of Monmouth, Illinois, who survives him. Under the firm name of Bowles and Hadden, Mr. Bowles was one of the leading importers of heavy,
draft horses, making Janesville one
of the best known horse centers of the early Sixties and Seventies. He built
two large barns in the city to accommodate his stock, the last being the
stone and brick structure now occupied by Kemmerer and Duddick on North bluff street. A kindly disposition, with his watchword of that honesty, his word being his bond. Mr.
Bowles has played an important part in the business life of the city. During the years following his retirement
from active business he has devoted
his time to his garden at his home,
351 South Main street and his property interests. The funeral will be held from his late residence on Friday afternoon at two, Rev. Williams of the Carroll Memorial church officiating.

"Miss Keys' reading was the leading feature of the evening and her reading of the different selections was perfect. She has a charming appearance on the stage, her voice is rich,
resonant and of fine quality, and her
interpretation of character is excellent. She may feel sure of having a crowded house when she again favors
us with an evening's entertainment."

KEEN RIVALRY NOW ON
AMONG ICE RACERS

Yesterday's Races on the Ice Causes
Horsemen to Issue Challenge—
None to Be Met.

Yesterday's race on the ice, which
they did not go very far towards settling the arguments among local horsemen, at least eliminated a few
competitors and showed up two of the
purses as contestants for first honors.
Out of the four or five horses who
were turned loose on the gas pond
track, Noah Jones' mare and the sorrel belonging to E. R. Lloyd wound up with first honors evenly divided. Of course no real decision can be made
as the starts are ragged and no particular person is the judge. Both of the above local owners claim that they have the winner and as a result, Mr.
Jones has signified his willingness to race Mr. Lloyd for a purse of fifty dollars or more. This challenge will no doubt lead to a race in the near future, provided that the ice holds up,
which will settle for all time the long
standing dispute.

Yesterday was a very good day for
the sports on the ice track as the surface was softened enough by the
thaw to make the footing excellent.
Probably none of the horses from here
will be entered in the Beloit events on February 1, as the races there are classed to meet the speed of their own
horses and the class is a stiff one.

GLASS REGULATES
LENGTH OF TALKS

Sand-Glass Used in House to Keep Proponents of Amendments From Speaking Too Long.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 25.—They have
snuff boxes on the Senate side, they have quill pens and sand for blowing
in the Supreme Court room, and now
the House of Representatives has followed back on the ancient sand-glass
as a means for telling time.

The sand-glass is not exclusively used to tell time in the House. It is only utilized as an aid to the presiding officers in appointing time for
speeches under the so-called "five minute rule" of the House.

The glass was made to order by specialists furnished by Asher C.
Hinds, whose real job as parliamentarian is concealed under the title of
"Clerk of the Speaker's table." It consists of two long glass tubes, nearly a foot and a half in length, each one of which is a five-minute glass. They are on opposite sides of a brass standard, and may be reversed when the
sand has run into one end of the tube
by turning a knob in the center. The sand which runs from one end of the tube to the other, is black. The background for the tubes is white enamel,
so that a congressman who has good
eyesight may see just how fast the sand is running out from any place on the floor within fifty feet of the Speaker's rostrum. The presiding officer
looks at the tube which faces him.

During the consideration of all appropriation measures in "Committee
of the Whole" House on the "Union"
amendments are permitted under the "five minute rule,"
that is, each proponent of an amendment is granted five minutes in which
to speak in favor of the proposed change. Heretofore, a special clock
was used by the presiding officer—
was used by the Committee of the Whole House, as he is officially called—
to keep tabs on these five minute
speeches. But there have always been complaints of discrimination by
the presiding officer, and even the most careful chairman sometimes forgets to note the exact time at which a
speaker begins his talk under the
five minute rule, and has to guess the time.

Very few members can accurately
estimate five minutes, and when the most of them get warmed up to their subject very few can complete their
argument within the specified time.
If they had some means of ascertain-
ing how fast their time was being consumed they would probably be able to finish. No member can now complain
of being discriminated against, and
the thin line of black sand is a mute
warning that "tempus fugit."

The glass was first tried out a few days ago during consideration of the Moon bill to revise, amend and codify
the laws relating to the judiciary.
Rep. Olmsted (Pennsylvania) was the chairman of the Committee of the Whole and expressed satisfaction at the operation of the new scheme. To the operation of the new scheme five minutes of time had expired, he declared,
and the sands of time have run against
the gentleman. "In lieu of the time
honored formula," "The gentleman's
time has expired."

Representative Butler of Pennsylvania, suggested to Speaker Cannon
that the device he improved on by the attachment of a rigger which should
fire off a percussion cap at the expiration of five minutes and thus save the voice of the presiding officer.

Tough on Consumers.
"I thought you said the cost of living was coming down?"
"That was the prediction made."
"Well, it must have been a mistake. According to a story from Louisiana, the latest quotation for widow's kisses is $500 apiece."

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Clinton, Jan. 25.—The concert Monday night at the Baptist church by the

and appreciated as was also the piano
playing by Miss Lena. The readings
by Miss Lena were not up to the standard expected by Clinton audi-

sing her soprano solos was disappointing.

TRANSPORTATION WAS CAUSE OF TROUBLE

Error in Announcing Consulate Appointment Brought Forth A Storm Of Protest.

[BY UNITED PRESS.]
Washington, Jan. 25.—Through the transportation of the names of two men, the State Department has been obliged to defend itself from the charge of favoritism in making appointments to the Consular Service.
The Berlin correspondent of a Chicago paper called that the Consular Corps there was up in arms over the appointment of one "Gabriel B. Hollis" as consul general at Constantinople. This post pays $6,000, and it was stated that other consuls were indignant that the plum should have been given to a man whose name did not appear in the service register.

It developed subsequently when the charge was called to the attention of the State Department, that the appointee at Constantinople was Gabriel B. Ravandul, who has been consul at Beirut.
Mr. Ravandul was succeeded at Beirut by W. Stanley Hollis, former consul at Dundee. Somebody at the State Department inadvertently combined the first name of the one with the last name of the other, and the name went to the Senate as "Gabriel B. Hollis."
The mistake was discovered and rectified before the name was officially entered on the Senate rolls, but in the meantime the newspaper men had it sent out as originally transmitted. It got over to Berlin without correction and there it was trouble developed.
The mistake had been corrected by the White House without knowledge of the State Department, which was considerably mystified at the despatch from Berlin.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

By MUTH CAMERON.

IN A DEPARTMENT store not far from here two girls, Miss S. and Miss E., work side by side at the glove counter.

The requirements of this shop as to the attractive appearance of its girls are very strict, and Miss E., the girl who stands furthest from the door on the L. street side, has several times brought down the criticism of the forewoman upon her because her clothes did not look nice enough. Considering the fact that she gets but eight dollars a week such a criticism seems rather trying, doesn't it?

But the girl who works nearest the door, Miss S., far from being criticized, is always so neatly dressed that customers frequently stop and admire her and wonder how she does it.

AND she also gets but eight dollars a week.

A day or two after New Year's when some reorganizing in the shop was going on and several girls were to be discharged, the forewoman who really wanted to keep Miss E. because she was a good saleswoman, despite her unsatisfactory appearance, conceived a plan.

She summoned both the girls to the office and put it up to them this way: "Both you girls are getting eight dollars a week. Now how much do you pay at home for board?"

Both paid three dollars a week.

"What do you do with the rest of your money?"

"Clothes mostly," said Miss E. despondently.

"I save a dollar a week and most of the rest goes for clothes," said Miss S.

"Well," said the forewoman bluntly, "that means that you spend about a dollar a week less on your clothes than Miss E., and you look about fifty per cent better. Do you think you could tell her how you do it?"

"I guess it's because of that dollar less," said Miss S. "You see I have saved about that over since I've been here and I've got over a hundred dollars in the bank, and that makes it possible for me to take advantage of every bargain I see."

"You know," addressing Miss E., "you came in just yesterday and told me about a lovely dress marked down from forty to fifteen dollars that would be just the thing to wear in the shop, but you said you hadn't the money and when you did have it the dress would be gone, and that that was always the way."

"I always keep a few dollars in my bureau drawer and I never let a chance to get what I need at a reasonable price go by. I never buy anything at regular prices. There's not a thing I've got but would cost me from one-third to two-thirds more if I didn't buy it at just the right time. The dress that I've worn all this winter and that you girls think is so swell I bought in the last spring marked down sale, marked from thirty-eight to fifteen dollars. It came from a store that's enough ahead of the styles so that it won't look old fashioned and it's got so little trimming and such nice goods that it don't look shabby yet, and will do me for a rainy day dress next winter."

"Do you think you could learn to save and do like Miss S. if I'd give you a chance to learn?" asked the forewoman.

"I'll begin next payday," answered Miss E., "and save a dollar."

"If you'll keep it up for six months I'll raise your pay to nine and yours has already been raised to that," Miss S. said the forewoman.

I wonder if she will keep it up.

I wonder too if any of the other girls whose purchasing power might be so vastly increased by such a fund will take the hint and do likewise.

want to appear right; one must have that certain quality called magnetism, or of cultivation. If one is willing to exert himself a little, and one must choose his attitude towards the world as the connoisseur chooses a vase for what he will represent to the world and for its intrinsic value, if he is to have influence.

And it is influence that most of us dig for. It is influence we desire when we begin the work of hoarding money. It is influence we are after when we strive for the artistic prize.

Influence, the priceless gift for which men have bartered everything they possessed.

Most of us start out with the idea of accumulating money and position but both are synonyms of influence.

After a man has secured a certain financial or social standing he forgets about the money and position and thinks only of the influence he commands. If he loses his fortune he grieves more for the lost influence than he does for the vanished money.

And so influence in any direction is the real value of ourselves and to make these services of the greatest importance we must first treat ourselves right—treat ourselves as if we were human beings with God-given inspirations, with God-given talents to be used for the betterment of mankind and the improvement of the race.

A Chapter on Soups.

What keener pleasure may life hold for a housewife with a sense of humor than to see a family refuse sausages one day and gladly eat soup based upon these self-same sausages the very next night? Some jokes, of necessity must be enjoyed alone, though most pleasures are doubled by sharing.

—Olive Green.

Mutton and Potato Soup.—Add one cupful of cold mashed potatoes to six cupfuls of mutton stock. Reheat, season to taste, and thicken with the yolks of two eggs beaten smooth in half a cup of cream.

Panada.—Put into a stew pan three quarts of beef stock and half a pound of stale bread crumbs. Simmer until the bread is soft, strain through a sieve, season to taste, and serve.

Onion and Cheese Soup.—Slice four large white onions and fry brown in butter, adding two tablespoonsfuls of flour. Add two quarts of beef stock and one quart of water, season with salt and pepper, and boil for ten minutes. Toast thin slices of bread in the oven. Butter a soup tureen and put a layer of bread in the bottom. Sprinkle with grated cheese, repeat until three layers of bread and cheese have been used. Pour boiling soup over. Let stand a moment, covered, and serve.

Combination Soup.—Chop fine a pound each of salt pork and lean beef. Add a quart of baked beans, a bunch of celery, chopped fine, and a large onion sliced. Cover with cold water, simmer for three hours, rub through a sieve, reheat, skimming carefully. Season to taste, and serve.

Bean and Tomato Soup.—Cook together for half an hour, in cold water, one can of beans. Rub through a sieve, reheat, season with salt, pepper and Worcestershire, and serve with slices of fried bread.

Never throw away any bones or scraps or trimmings of meat. If not sufficient to make soup stock, they will be an addition to sauces and gravies.

VELVET, LACE AND SATIN.

A handsome reception gown, with knee-deep band of black velvet. Above this is a tulle arrangement of ribbon lace, attached to a bodice and upper skirt of silver-gray satin. Lace and velvet combine in manner shown in making the ruffles and sleeves of bodice. The buttons used for decoration on sleeves are cut steel, and the very narrow grade of black velvet passes through cut steel buckles in front.

Metallic lace are tremendously popular and very striking, but this model created out in Venetian lace would be equally beautiful.

FUR TRIMMED HAT.

Of unusual design is this charming model for a long and comfortable evening frock. Cloth, in a pretty, delicate shade, is probably the most appropriate material to use, although the heavy satins on sale for wraps, etc., would be quite correct and somewhat more dressy. Pale blue, in either fabric, with black lynx fur trimming is a pretty combination. The ornament in front should be jet, if black fur is used.

SUGGESTION AS FACTOR IN DISEASE.

Much has been written about the influence of the mind in overcoming disease, but little or nothing about the equally potent influence of suggestion in producing disease. It is evident that the rule must work both ways. It has long been known that the fear of disease may produce it. Specialists often die of the diseases to which they give so much attention. Many cases of sickness are traceable to mental influence mainly. As the bread pill may be a carrier of suggestion to stimulate health, so may the thought that a certain food is injurious make it so. Hence the importance of the rule: Think health.

You Can Be Made Well If You Will Come to the Chiropractors

Every disease known to mankind yields to Chiropractic adjustments. Chiropractic is a science of old truths, the most wonderful aid to mankind in centuries. It's a new science, that analyzes and locates unerringly the physical cause of disease, and provides a means of adjusting or removing the cause more promptly, radically and permanently than any other method known at the present time. These may seem bold statements to make. Yet there is plenty of proof to back them up. If you are sick and suffer, if you have tried the medical profession and failed to be cured, come to us. Ninety-eight per cent of the people that come to the Chiropractors are made well, and this notwithstanding the fact that 75 per cent of these same people HAVE BEEN GIVEN UP by the medical profession. TREAT YOURSELF RIGHT.

One of the Alcotts, I have forgotten which, wrote: "Your real influence is measured by your treatment of yourself," and it is a pretty good argument for a proper attention to one's duty self.

Some of us even bury our interest in everything except what we may for the time be trying to accomplish. GOOD HOUSE GREETINGS SHOW AT THE MYERS

"House of a Thousand Candles" With Good Company Gives Satisfying Performance.

A good house greeted the performance of "The House of a Thousand Candles" at the Myers Theatre last evening. This company which presented Middleton's dramatization of Meredith Nicholson's great novel was an exceptionally good one and deserved the patronage which they received. The atmosphere of the story is unique and abounds in the weird and mysterious. Old Glenam leaves his big home with its thousand candles and following death, makes a will which is typical of his eccentric nature. By the terms of the will, the young Glenam, his grandson, is put through a series of hard trials before he can inherit the estate among which is living in the old house for a year and staying single. This young man's tribulations in the mansion, with a comely young woman, who with an accomplice is trying to cover the hiding place of the old man's treasure and some legal documents, and at the same time endeavoring to obtain the hand of the brave Miss Dovereaux in marriage furnishes the basis for the faithful and suave tales. The latter is the trusted butler of old Glenam, possessed of the secret of the aged gentleman, who is left to look after the interests of the grandson. The role of this calm, mysterious and loving servant was admirably taken by George D. Winn. The company was evenly balanced and the stage effects were excellent in the production of the weird and ghostly scenes laid in the mansion with its thousand candles. The part of Glenam, the unprincipled accomplice taken by Jack Shinnauer and that of pretty Marion Dovereaux by Miss Rosebelle Leslie were particularly well done. Much was added to the success of the piece and the atmosphere of the story by the work of Will O. Miller as Pickering and Ed. May as the Sheriff.

Long Stock Company.

The Frank E. Long Stock company will appear at the Myers theatre one week, commencing Monday, Jan. 30, presenting now high-class royalty plays and amusing vaudeville features. The plays used this season are produced at a high cost to Mr. Long, as he has secured the exclusive rights from the American Play company of New York for the royalty plays he is using in this territory. The offering on Monday night will be a four-act melodrama entitled "Sweet Clover." Miss Nana Sullivan, who heads the company, gives a delightfully artistic rendition of "Lola," the heroine in "Sweet Clover," and proves herself to be a talented and staid actress. The vaudeville features between the acts are up to the high standard of excellence. Manager Long has always maintained, Ladies' free tickets for Monday under the usual conditions. If secured at the seat sale before 6 p. m., Monday.

Mr. Long is known over the country as "The Old Reliable," giving a full bill of first-class productions, changing the play at every performance. Though the company has not made Janesville for several years, yet the theatregoers will probably remember them from former years. P. Atkinson, Detroit, Stoughton, Sheboygan and other southern Wisconsin cities always have a hearty welcome for the Frank E. Long company and he usually plays to capacity houses.

The Skin and Not the Blood.

Until recently it has been a generally accepted proposition that eczema was a disease of the blood, and that in order to cure it, the blood must be purified and enriched by internal remedies. Careful experiments and scientific investigations have taught us that eczema is purely a skin disease, and cures through the skin alone. A great majority of persons afflicted with eczema have no other ailment, which is accepted as positive proof that it is purely a skin disease. Having established this fact, the chemists of the American Drug and Pross Association set about to compound a prescription that would successfully cope with this disease, and after much investigating brought out Meritol Eczema Remedy, the effect of which is marvelous. If you are afflicted with this loathsome disease, do not delay trying Meritol Eczema Remedy. You will be surprised at its prompt action, its soothing effect and its permanent results. Cayley gazed at the spectacle unthinkingly, but still he gazed. And, somehow, though he fought the feeling desperately, it began to assume a personal significance to him—a significance of mockery. The whole sky was quivering with vast, silent laughter. Was it because he, with his fancied cleverness and daring in finding Roscoe's lair and waiting for his return to it, was really doing precisely the thing that Roscoe would have had him do? Were those sky-witches laughing over what was happening up at the pilot house while he sat here and waited?

No intelligence, no sane power of consecutive reasoning can resist this sort of thing definitely, and at last Cayley's power of resistance came to an end.

He sprang to his feet, at last, dripping with sweat, in spite of the cold, caught up his bundled wings, unfurled them and took the air with a rush. Once he had jerked himself aloft to a height a little above the crest of the cliff, it was hardly more than a matter of seconds before he came opposite the dome-like mound of snow which covered the pilot house.

There was no light shining out of the tunnel entrance. But that was as he had expected it to be. He made it out easily enough; and in another moment had alighted there.

"Jeanne!" he called.

It was not the exertion of flight, but a sudden intolerable apprehension that made him breathless. The word had halted a little in his throat. Exactly as he uttered it he saw down the tunnel, and in the pilot house itself, a tiny spark of fire, and heard the click of steel against flint.

What the spark illuminated were the fingers of a gigantic, hairy hand. "Jeanne!" he called again, and now his voice came clear enough. "Wait a minute and I'll make a light for you."

CHAPTER XXII.

In the Pilot House.

Cayley had been right in assuming, as he did in his conversation with Jeanne, upon the subject, that Roscoe and the other people of the Walrus had never noticed the ice chimney, nor suspected the existence of the pilot house upon the cliff-head. Also, he had followed correctly the track of Roscoe's mind in the deduction that the two latest castaways upon this land—that is, Philip and Jeanne—must have perished in the great storm which began on the night when he fired the hut, and continued for so many weeks that he, like them, lost all trace of reckoning.

During the storm he had lived in the cave, much as Philip and Jeanne had lived in the pilot house on the cliff; he had, that is to say, in some purely automatic fashion, kept on existing. The more momentum of a mature man's vitality makes it hard for him to die. But when the storm abated and milder weather came, he beatified himself, as Cayley did, and set about digging a tunnel of his own through the great drift which had blocked the entrance to his cave.

The next time the moon came up after he had completed the tunnel from the cave, he set out down the beach toward the ruins of the hut.

It was not mere curiosity which attracted him, nor any lurking fear, but simply the hope of making some salvage from the wreckage of the hut, or possibly, from the bodies of his two victims. In case he was lucky enough to find them. He had no doubt at all that they were dead.

His pleasure over the quantity and condition of the stores he found in the ice cave compensated for his disappointment over not finding the bodies of his two latest victims.

Evidently they had not even attempted to use such shelter as the ice chamber afforded, for it showed no mark of human habitation at all. They had probably wandered outside and died in one of the near-by drifts. Perhaps he would find them some day. For the present, however, the stores occupied his whole attention.

Very methodically he set to work, carrying them off to his own cave, working without fatigue and without intermission—working so long as the moonlight lasted.

It was just setting out with his last load when, glancing skyward to see how long the light would hold, he caught a glimpse of Cayley on the wing. The sight occasioned him no return—not even momentary—of the old terror. He hurried a little because he had not his rifle with him; the skyman soaring slowly and not very high, presented a mark he could almost certainly have hit.

It was surprising, of course, to see him alive, but Roscoe, in his present state, never thought of looking to supernatural means to account for the fact. Indeed, he was hardly more than a moment in approximating the true explanation. There might well be, he supposed, up somewhere in the face of the cliff a cave, or shelter, of which he knew nothing, and easily accessible to anyone who happened to possess a flying machine.

Skirting the cliff and keeping well in its shadow, he made his way with his last load, back to his cave. Here he spent a few minutes cleaning his rifle, making sure that the mechanism of the breach was working perfectly, and filling its magazine full of cartridges.

The moon was just setting, but the sky was still bright enough to give him a good hope of making out Cayley's winged figure against it.

Roscoe squatted down in the lee of the great hummock of ice, surveyed the heavens with keen, practiced eyes, munching on a strip of dried walrus-meat which he had brought with him and waited very contentedly.

He had not long to wait. Long before the moon twilight had gone out of the sky he saw in it silhouetted against it, the light from which he had once fled with such mad terror—the broad expanse of the skyman's wings.

Instead of firing, he scrambled up to the top of the nearest ice hummock and from there watched Cayley's flight to his landing place.

He laughed aloud when he saw that it was not in the side of the cliff, as he had feared, but quite at the crest of it—where it was as accessible to a man who could climb a bit as to one with wings.

He did not move from his attitude of strained attention on the summit of a little ice hill, until he saw a faint glow of golden light diffusing itself from the mouth of the tunnel that led to the pilot house.

Then, with that queer shuffling gait of his, which was neither walk nor run, he began making his way ashore, over the ice, toward the foot of the cliff.

Cayley's tunnel was not at right angles to the crest, but bore off diagonally westward. Roscoe had noted this fact, and he figured it out from the top of the promontory, which formed the western boundary of their strip of beach, he should be able to command a view straight into the tunnel. Also, there was at this point a precipitous trail up the cliff. No one but Roscoe would have called it a trail, but that was the way it existed in his mind.

His calculation of the angle of the tunnel proved to be correct, for from his newly-gained vantage, he could see straight into the pilot house and make out clearly enough two figures there.

Once more he was tempted to fire, and might have yielded to the temptation had not the light been put out before he had fairly got his eyes adjusted to the distance.

It is to be remembered, always, that he knew nothing whatever of the ice chimney, and suspected no connection between the hut and the pilot house, except by the air. For anything he knew to the contrary, Jeanne might be able to fly, as well as Philip, or he to carry her with him upon his flights. Consequently, he did not suspect, when he saw Cayley take to flight again, that this action had any reference to himself; nor that the woman who was left alone would be on her guard against him.

The moment he glimpsed the shadow of Cayley's wings against the stars he began making his way, cautiously, over the crusty snow, toward the pilot house. The door was closed, but there was a light shining through a crack beneath it. It was a dark door, but something had been hanging over the glass so that he could not see into the interior.

Both Jeanne and Philip had made the mistake of assuming that the only way of access to the pilot house, except to Philip with his wings, was the ice chimney. It was a natural mistake enough—one that almost any but a practiced mountaineer would have made.

Furthermore they had no reason—either of them—for anticipating an attack upon the pilot house while Philip was gone. They had been living here, now for weeks, in unbroken security. So, though the girl obeyed Philip's injunction literally and scrupulously, she did it without the slightest sense of personal danger, and indeed she would hardly have had room for such an emotion even if there had been a much more reasonable ground for it.

She was sitting beside the oil stove, in one of the farther corners of the room. The chimney hole was in the corresponding corner. The revolver lay on the table in the middle of the room, a few paces behind her. The pilot house door was directly in line with it, and almost exactly behind her back. The door was hinged to swing inward.

When it burst open she attributed the fact to no other agency than the wind. She laid down her head and book upon the bench beside her and rose, rather deliberately, before she turned round.

As she did so Roscoe sprang forward to the table and seized the revolver. Her failure to turn, immediately had given him the second he needed to take in the strategic possibilities of the room.

His rifle was a clumsy weapon in close quarters. So, as he sprang forward, he dropped it and made for the revolver instead. It only needed a glance at the girl to convince him that she was unarmed. Quite deliberately he broke upon the breach of the revolver and satisfied himself that it was loaded. Then he looked up again, blinking at the girl.

It was no wonder that Carlson and Rose had mistaken her for the ghost of the man their leader murdered. She looked like her father as a woman may resemble a man, and her white-ness, her fineness, her delicacy all increased rather than diminished the credibility of the idea that she was in fact his spirit.

The hand which held the revolver dropped nervously at his side. He swallowed hard, and wrung his cruel lips with his other great hand. It was then that the girl looked up into his face. It was then she uttered her first cry.

For she saw that he did not mean to kill her.

Suddenly Jeanne's eyes detached themselves from his face. A look of sudden alarm came into them, and she raised her hand to her throat, as though she were choking. She was looking past Roscoe, and straight down the snow tunnel.

"Philip!" she cried, "take care; he's here."

The snow tunnel was empty, and for aught she knew, her lover's body might be lying mangled in the monster's cave. She had thought of that before she tried the trick. But, even if that were so, that cry of hers might lead the monster to steal one uneasy glance at the door behind him; and even that would give her time enough. If he had not killed Philip, but simply eluded him, he would turn instantly.

That was what he did. He sprang round with a suddenness which bespoke a perfectly genuine, common-sense alarm. And then he found himself in darkness.

He understood at once that he had been tricked. Without wasting the time to turn back and look at Jeanne, he sprang toward the pilot house door. He thought she meant to attempt to rush by him, gain the snow-tunnel and throw herself over the crest of the cliff. He had not misread the sudden loathing he had seen in her eyes when they met his face.

In the open doorway he wheeled round, triumphant. She had not got ahead of him that time. He laughed aloud into the darkness, and then spoke to her, with a vile, jocular familiarity.

But he got no answer, in words or otherwise. There was no outcry, no stifled sobbing. Nothing at all but sigh and whine of the wind.

He moved forward, groping in the dark, but stopped when he felt the pressure of the table across his thighs. He could do nothing without a light. He would relight the candle, first of all, and then he would find her.

He took a bit of flint, a nail and a rope of tow from his pocket. He struck a spark, but it failed to kindle the tow.

It was at that instant that Philip alighted.

Philip sprang clear of his planes, left them as they were there at the tunnel mouth, and walked steadily up toward the pilot house door.

Roscoe, on hearing his voice, the first time, had dropped the articles which encumbered his hands and groped on the table for the revolver. Before he could put his hand on it Cayley spoke the second time.

At that, wanting no weapon, confident that he needed none, his great arms aching for the feel of the skyman's flesh beneath their grasp, he moved a step nearer the door and waited.

He saw Philip cross the threshold, unseeing—suspecting, apparently, nothing; saw him, at last, within hand's reach.

Just as he touched him he uttered a sobbing oath, and his great hand faltered, for Philip's knife had struck through, clean to the hilt, and just below the heart.

The effect of the shock was only momentary. With a yell of rage, he sprang upon Cayley, crowded him back against the wall, tore at him blindly, like a wild beast, and finally getting Philip's right fore-arm fairly in the grip of both hands, he snapped it like a pipestem.

LOST DOG HEARS HIS NAME

Barks When "Jimmie Joe" Is Pronounced in Advertisement and Is Restored to Owner.

New York.—Jimmie Joe, a diminutive fox terrier belonging to Little Mary Miller, of Curry road, Caldwell, N. J., has been returned to his soft sleeping rug near the front hall radiator. The search is at an end.

Convinced that the world contained things more interesting than those which came to his attention in Caldwell, his birthplace and the scene of his puppyhood, Jimmie Joe, about a week ago, slipped out when no one was looking and started in search of adventure. He headed the wrong way. The expedition was a failure and ended in Cedar Grove.

Having been a resident of Caldwell, Jimmie Joe had learned to make the best out of a trying situation. He trotted up Eastwood place, in Cedar Grove, and turned in at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rue. He was hungry and he was taken in.

The other evening Mr. and Mrs. Rue were seated in their library and the fox terrier was still with them.

"Hello!" said Mr. Rue, who was reading the Caldwell News. "Here's an advertisement that says a fox terrier belonging to Miss Mary Miller answering the name of Jimmie Joe."

At the sound of the name the dog leaped with joy and barked several times.

"I wonder if he is the lost Jimmie Joe," said Mrs. Rue.

And so he was.

PIMPLES CURED in Ten Days, or your money back

Any one who has pimples, boils, blackheads, liver spots, open sores and eruptions should know it is because of bad blood. The circulation has become contaminated with matter that has diseased the blood, which is being forced out of the system through the pores of the skin. This condition cannot be cured unless you remove the cause. Bitter Complexion Tablets purify the blood, strengthen the system and make your skin clear, youthful appearance. If Bitter Complexion Tablets do not return your money, under the purifying and tonic effect of Bitter Complexion Tablets the system will be built up and your skin cleared, usually in about ten days. Sold and recommended by Baker & Son, Druggists, 222 E. Washington St., Chicago, for large supply.

NEED NO OPERATION IN APPENDICITIS CASES

Dr. Page, Leading Boston Surgeon, Calls It Criminal and Cites Death of Clyde Fitch and Gov. Johnson for Example

Boston, Mass., Oct. 4.—"An operation for appendicitis should be called a criminal operation, and as such should be prohibited by law," so declares Dr. Charles E. Page, one of Boston's best known physicians. "I have been following the records of appendicitis operations ever since the craze for appendectomy started," says Dr. Page, "and I confidently believe that the day is coming when the people will finally recognize that appendectomy—cutting of the appendix—is a criminal operation. "As for the widely proclaimed benefits and saving of life by operations to cut the appendix, it seems hardly necessary to cite the long list of deaths following the operation. Only recently we have striking instances of Clyde Fitch, the great playwright, and Gov. Johnson of Minnesota.

"The surgeons cut off Gov. Johnson's appendix a year or so ago; they operated on him a second time, and on the third he fell a victim to mistaken modern theories. I have kept track of the appendectomy deaths for twenty years and the list is appalling."

And now perhaps you people of Janesville and vicinity will begin to believe what I have been telling you through the columns of this paper, for the past two years, that 60 per cent of the cases of so-called appendicitis can be cured by treatment without the use of the knife, operation or danger.

My best reference is the many grateful patients I have cured. Some right here near Janesville and to whom I will gladly refer you if you wish to write them regarding same.

I shall be at Janesville Tuesday, Jan. 31, at the Myers Hotel, where you may consult me free of charge. If you cannot call, write. Address as below.

I also treat with equal success all chronic and deep-seated diseases, such as Gall Stones, Liver, Stomach and Kidney and Bladder troubles; also Rheumatism and Diseases of Women, without the use of Surgery or the knife. Ladies suffering from troubles peculiar to their sex should by all means secure the doctor's advice.

ALL MATTERS STRICTLY CONFIDENTIAL.

REMEMBER: Dr. Goddard accepts no incurable cases.

REMEMBER: Dr. Goddard gives a written guarantee to cure in those cases he does accept for treatment.

REMEMBER: His charges are within the reach of all.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Gazette, Wednesday, Jan. 25, 1871. Jottings.—We were yesterday shown an ancient bible, the property of Mr. Stephen Scott of Emerald Grove, bearing date of 1606, and printed by Robert Barker "printer to the king's most excellent majesty." Notwithstanding the great age of this volume its pages have a bright, clear appearance, the binding is yet complete and the cover only partially worn. Mr. Barker was well entitled to the patronage of a king-to be able to produce a superior specimen of typography at a time when the art was but in its infancy.

The Pure Food Law.

Secretary Wilson says: "One of the objects of the law is to inform the consumer of the presence of certain harmful drugs in medicines." The law requires that the amount of children's opium, morphine, and other habit forming drugs be stated on the label of each bottle. The manufacturers of Norton's Cough Remedy have always claimed that their remedy did not contain any of these drugs, and the truth of this claim is now fully proven, as no mention of them is made on the label. This remedy is not only one of the safest but one of the best in use for coughs and colds. Its value has been proven beyond question during the many years it has been in general use.
